Behold, the Everlasting God

Scripture Text: Isaiah 40:27–31

"Why do you say, O Jacob, and speak, O Israel, 'My way is hidden from the LORD, and my right is disregarded by my God'?" (Isaiah 40:27)

We often struggle to understand God's timing. We pray, wait, and hope for His help, yet our circumstances remain unchanged. Days become months, and sometimes years pass without the answers we desire. Naturally, we begin to wonder whether God sees our difficulties, cares about us, or remembers His promises.

Isaiah addresses this concern. After calling Israel to behold God, the prophet asks why they would say, "My way is hidden from the LORD, and my right is disregarded by my God" (Isaiah 40:27). Having described God's power, wisdom, and care over creation, Isaiah finds it almost inconceivable that His people would question whether He knows their struggles or cares about the injustices they suffer.

Isaiah reminds them who God is: "Have you not known? Have you not heard? The LORD is the everlasting God, the Creator of the ends of the earth" (Isaiah 40:28). The One who sits above the circle of the earth, measures the heavens, rules the nations, and calls the stars by name has not lost sight of His people. His understanding is unsearchable, and He neither faints nor grows weary.

We often view God through human eyes, measuring His actions by our own limitations. We grow tired, lose patience, and struggle to see beyond our present predicaments. We measure time by how long we have waited and judge our situation by what has or has not changed. Yet the everlasting God sees what we cannot see. He knows the beginning and the end, and His purposes reach beyond our understanding.

Isaiah has already established the certainty of God's promises: "The grass withers, the flower fades, but the word of our God will stand forever" (Isaiah 40:8). God's timing differs from our expectations, but His Word is sure and steadfast. What He has promised, He will accomplish.

Isaiah then promises strength to those who are weary: "He gives power to the faint, and to him who has no might he increases strength" (Isaiah 40:29). Even the young grow tired, but those who wait for the LORD shall renew their strength. They will mount up with wings like eagles, run without growing weary, and walk without fainting.

Waiting upon the LORD means trusting His wisdom, relying upon His strength, and remaining faithful while His purposes unfold. We may not know when our circumstances will change, but we can trust the character of the God upon whom we wait.

The everlasting God has not forgotten us. He sees our circumstances, knows our needs, and remains faithful to His Word. As we wait upon Him, He gives us strength to endure and confidence that He will accomplish what He has promised.
